VENEZUELA'S TROUBLES.

Accounts of the aggressive action of England and Germany in Venezuela are filling the public press, but the exact cause thereof is not generally known. The story is short and simple, however,. So far as Germany is concerned the facts are as follows:

In 1856 the Venezuelan government borrowed $9,500,000 from a German bank, agreeing to pay 5 per cent interest, to annually make Attorney General. payments to a sinking fund, to pay the principal when due, and pledging the customs as security. A contract was then made with a German firm to build a railroad 200 miles long, the government agreeing to pay $6.840,000 toward the enterprise and guaranteeing 7 per cent on the cost of the road. The road was built, and the company claimed that it cost $20,000,000, being at the rate of $100,000 a mile. government disputed this, claiming that it could not legitimately cost so much.

About the time the railroad was completed the series of revolutions by her to the States and an answer was : JANUARY 20 came which have kept Venezuela embroiled ever since and, excepting received, eighteen months usually passed. In 1902 hardly more than eighteen a few inconsiderable amounts, no payments have been made either on minutes. the bonds, the railway guarantee, or on the sinking fund. When the s. M. After some evasive discussion President its recoinage into United States coins Castro replied that he would not recognize any claims that were over six months old, he having come into power through a revolution and the future be from 1 o'clock to 2 o'clock declining to become responsible for the debts or obligations of his every afternoon but Saturday. predecessors.

Germany refused to accede to this proposition, whereupon Castro announced that he would appoint a commission to consider the matter. All the attorneys in the city who were by himself and frequently differed from Germany objected, and proposed a joint commission to be appointed by approached have signed the petition exthe counsel of fellow-countrymen who the two governments. Castro rejected this proposition, and on January 24, 1901, appointed his own commission.
